HISTORY FAIR

“History knows that it can wait for more evidence and review its older verdicts; it offers an endless series of courts of appeal, and is ever ready to reopen closed cases.”

~William Stubbs

It is now time for you to open a cold case. For the next few months you are going to do an in-depth research project over an essential question you create. We will spend our Fridays working on this project so that you can have time to ask questions and gather the resources that you will need to complete this activity. We will be following the research methods that you learned during your freshmen year. Your end product will be a journal, research paper, presentation, and reflective essay.

On, Thursday, March 18, 2010 we will be gathering in the SCC to share our projects with the public. This will be your opportunity to show case your work and to shine.
